

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: May 1, 2025

Lemonade Day is here!

LUBBOCK, Texas — On Saturday, May 3, Lemonade Day 2025 will take place as hundreds of young entrepreneurs around the city will open their lemonade stands for business. Lemonade Day will officially kick off the day at 9:00 AM at Market Street on 98th Street and Quaker Avenue with interview and video opportunities for local media.

In the weeks leading up to Lemonade Day, kids across Lubbock have registered, attended workshops, planned their stands, prepared their menus, and more to ensure they are prepared for sweet success from owning and operating their own business.

Along the way, participants learn valuable life lessons such as making a plan, working out that plan, providing excellent customer service, and ultimately earning their very own money. Local business sponsors, schools, non-profit organizations, and government leaders come together to impact the lives of area youth.

All Lubbock residents and Texas Tech students are asked to go out this beautiful Saturday and support the area youth by buying at least three glasses of lemonade day on May 3 to help ensure the demand keeps pace with the ever-increasing supply.

Check out the stands who have placed themselves on the Lemonade Day Map at the bottom of the homepage: <https://lemonadeday.org/lubbock/>

Area residents are also encouraged to be extra cautious on the roads this weekend, as much like Halloween - the streets will have numerous young people hustling around.
