Albertsons Market & Market Street present The Storehouse New Mexico with a check for $23,356 following fundraising campaign

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — On Thursday, Albertsons Market and Market Street team members presented a check to The Storehouse New Mexico for $23,356.98 which will provide thousands of meals for those struggling with food insecurity across the community.

Albertsons Market and Market Street locations in Albuquerque, Rio Rancho, and Los Lunas ran a donate-at-the-register campaign in September to raise money to support the mission of The Storehouse New Mexico.

“We are proud to continue our tradition of supporting The Storehouse New Mexico,” said Carlos Hernandez, regional vice president for The United Family. “I’m so thankful to our loyal guests who helped us raise these funds. We know just how much these donations mean to this organization and the families they serve.”

The funds given to The Storehouse benefit New Mexico families and individuals who receive food assistance from them. As one of the largest food pantries in the state, The Storehouse serves tens of thousands of people a year.

“The Storehouse helped nearly 80,000 people last year, which was record breaking for our food pantry. With hunger on the rise, we greatly appreciate Albertsons Market and Market Street stores for hosting a fundraiser at their registers,” said Jill Beets, marketing representative for The Storehouse New Mexico. “This generous gift, made possible by the Albertsons Market team and their customers in central New Mexico, will provide over 116,000 meals to local families.”
